The University of Adelaide Art & Heritage Collections and Rare Books & Special Collections invite you to the launch of

Angela Valamanesh
A little bit of everything

John Terlet, Director, Adelaide Microscopy
The University of Adelaide, will launch the exhibition

4.30 – 6.00pm Thursday 28 October 2010
Rare Books & Special Collections
Level 1, Barr Smith Library, University of Adelaide

To register your attendance please call 8303 3086 or email art.heritage@adelaide.edu.au

Part of the NEWNEW project curated by the Contemporary Art Centre of South Australia, A little bit of everything is an exhibition by Angela Valamanesh. A snapshot of a work which will form part of the artist’s PhD presentation currently in preparation through the University of South Australia, it is a response to immersion in the imagery of early microscopy and scientific illustration held in the collections of Rare Books & Special Collections of the Barr Smith Library.

Angela Valamanesh is an Adelaide-based artist and holds a Masters Degree in Visual Arts from the South Australian School of Art, 1993, and is a recipient of a Samstag Scholarship, 1997. She exhibits widely and her work is found in many public collections including the University of Adelaide. She is recognised as a significant artist within the public art area where she collaborates with Hossein Valamanesh.

Viewing times
29 October – 5 December during
Barr Smith Library opening hours
Free — all welcome

With thanks to the Barr Smith Library and Division of Services and Resources of the University of Adelaide for their support.

image Angela Valamanesh A little bit of everything, 2010 (detail) mixed media photograph Michal Kluvanek